We started out last week to discuss the $170,000,000 "state" water plan from the viewpoint of one who sees therein little but an opportunity to put over a tremendous political razzle-dazzle which will, if permitted to go through, probably complete the bankrupting of the state without doing much temporary good on the way.

Section 7 of the proposed law was on the block last week when lack of space forced us to call a halt, but not until we had pointed out that the water Authority can, "if elected," proceed on the project without having on hand one cent of the highly advertised federal aid. According to the wording of the law, which specifically mentions appropriations and contributions as sources of working capital, it would seem that there is a good chance for all of us to help pay for the Roman holiday, contrary to the open-handed assurance to the contrary, as voiced by the scheme's proponents; for where would appropriations come from except the general—or any other—fund of the state or its "agents," and contributions could be raised in no way except taxation of some sort or other.

The same section grants the Authority the right to defer the building of the San Joaquin valley pumping system which is, in our opinion, the only unit of the works for which there is the slightest need. If the scheme goes through there is no assurance that the pumping plant will ever be built.

Section 9 not only empowers the Authority to fix prices for which all products of the project—water and power, presumably—may be sold, but clearly states that such prices must be high enough to pay all costs of operation and maintenance, and also to meet and pay any and all payments for redemption of any and all bonds and interest thereon. Here consumers would come face to face with a situation not unlike that which has made certain kinds of mutual benefit insurance a source of grief to those who buy it—when the company is faced with a loss, the policy-holders are obliged to dig into their jeans to pay the other fellow's bill; for the services, if any, can, under the terms of the law, be cut off on five years' notice—or immediately for non-payment of charges—and few big consumers would care to risk the former, while small consumers would shun services for which little leniency was shown in payment thereof, and that leaves it up to the remaining consumers "to pay all costs, etc." And to our way of thinking the remaining customers would be pretty apt to find themselves paying through the nose for whatever they bought from the project.

"No taxes—no debt," shout proponents of the "statewide" water plan. Well, let's see. Section 10 of the law, which provides for the levying of taxes and assessments, says:

"It shall be the duty of the governing body or board charged with the levying of taxes or assessments in any state agency which shall contract to purchase from the authority any water, use of water, water storage, electricity, electric power or other service, to provide for the punctual payment to the authority of all amounts which become due under such contract; and such board or governing body must, whenever necessary, levy upon all property in such state agency not exempt from taxation, a tax or assessment sufficient to provide for all payments under such contract

No Hard Liquor For Campbell, Says Founder's Heir

That hard liquor will be available in Campbell after the repeal of the 18th amendment is just a pipe-dream, asserts J. Henry Campbell, who said last week that he would fight to the last ditch any attempt to sell booze in this community.

All deeds to land hereabouts, issued by Benjamin Campbell, founder of the village, carry a clause that provides for a bone dry town, inasmuch as the sale of hard liquor on any premises once owned by Benjamin Campbell would cause the land to revert to his heirs, who are now represented solely by J. Henry Campbell, 82.

It was his father's wish that the community remain forever dry, and to this end Mr. Campbell is prepared to "go to the mat" with anyone who attempts to sell old demon rum in the town of Campbell.

An earlier attempt to halt the sale of beer here was frustrated when Mr. Campbell was informed by his attorneys that Congress had officially declared the brew to be non-intoxicating.

STITCHING CLUB MEETS AT HALL WITH MRS. BROWN

On Thursday afternoon last the members of Ada Rebekah Stitching club met at Odd Fellows hall for their regular meeting. Mrs. Mary Brown was hostess of the day, and she was assisted by her daughter, Mrs. June Rice.

During a brief business session, which was presided over by President Mrs. Archie Brydon, plans were made for a series of card parties which are to be held throughout the winter, and other future plans were discussed.

Sewing on quilts and new ceremonial costumes for officers of the local lodge occupied the time until late afternoon, when refreshments were served at a long table bright with autumn foliage and flowers.

The next meeting of the club will be held at the hall on Thursday, Nov. 23, at which time Mrs. Al Bulmore and Mrs. T. A. Robinson will be in charge of the day.

COLLEGE GROUP C. E. SPONSORS REV. WHITAKER

Sunday evening at 7:45 the Rev. Robert Whitaker of Los Gatos will speak here at the Congregational church. Reverend Whitaker is a popular speaker, widely known for his ability to competently discuss social problems.

Hoopsters Split Honors With Santa Clara Friday Night

Last Friday night's basketball offering was well received here when the local lightweights split honors with Santa Clara. The Campbell 110-pound team was victorious, taking the Mission lads into camp 11-8.

The 120's, on the other hand, lost 17 to 10, and the game was marked with a seeming reluctance on the part of the Campbell boys to "shoot."

This Friday, Nov. 17, fans will be obliged to go to Fremont in order too see their favorite sport, as the lads take on that school there. At a previous meeting, both Campbell teams suffered defeat, and it is expected that the boys, still smarting under the loss, will make a valiant attempt to even the score.

GEO. W. RIDLEY OPENS WATCH REPAIRING SHOP

Campbell folks may now avail themselves of the services of a watchmaker without stirring out of town.

George W. Ridley who, with Mrs. Ridley, moved here from Colorado about a year ago, has opened a shop in Guy Farley's real estate office, and he is equipped to do the finest kind of work on watches and clocks.

Mr. Ridley is no novice at the game, having put in over 20 years in the watch, jewelry and optical business before moving to this community. He is well pleased with his new location, as he has been quite busy since he opened his shop about a week ago.

Reed Clouts Home In Eleventh Inning Win Over Slavs

Sunday the Campbell ball club won a torrid, 11-inning game from the Napredak club by a score of 7 to 7. Breck Reed came up in the last half of the 11th with one gone and hit a long home run between center and right fields. The ball rolled to the fence, and Reed scored the winning run.

Things looked bad for Campbell when they donated the Napredaks four runs in the second inning on errors. Campbell got two of them back in their half on a walk to Atkinson and hits by Reed and Quain. The home club scored another in the third when Lathrop was hit by a pitched ball and Woods came through with a nice hit. Two hits in a row scored Saich in the fourth for the Slavs, and Campbell was again two runs behind. The Napredaks might have scored another, only Lathrop broke up their attempted squeeze play, and Bonachich was caught off third, Lathrop to DeFraga. Campbell brought the score up one run in their half of the fourth when Quain was safe on an error and Thurber came through with a long triple.

Quain was master in the fifth, and the Slavs were held scoreless. Campbell led for the first time when DeFraga drove in two runs on a fielder's choice following hits by Lathrop and Woods and a walk to Atkinson. Quain again held the opposition scoreless in the sixth, and Campbell forged ahead another run in their half on hits by Thurber, Tucker, and Lathrop, with Clark's sacrifice thrown in.

The Slavonians woke up in their half of the seventh and on four consecutive hits scored two runs. Flashy fielding behind Quain saved the day in this inning, and partially made up for the previous errors. DeFraga took a hard drive off the bat of Perusina, and threw him out at first, and a relay, Clark to Tucker to Lathrop, caught Brayavich at the plate when he tried to stretch his triple into a home run. These two runs tied up the ball game.

It was getting pretty dark and Quain settled down to allow only one hit for the rest of the game. Campbell was hitting Perusina hard and should have won the game in the eighth, but with the bases bulging and two gone DeFraga struck out. He retaliated in the ninth, however, and helped Quain out by making a one-handed catch of a foul ball.

This brings us up to that fatal—for the Napredaks—11th inning. White, batting for DeFraga, struck out. Reed came up determined to end the game. With the count one ball and one strike, he whaled into the old American apple, and the ball game was over. The fans—of which there were not too many—contributed $1.00, United States money, to Reed, and he says that if they will continue to be that liberal he is going to get two or three homers next time.

The Campbell sluggers got plenty of base hits, collecting 15 off Matuschich and Perusina. Lathrop led with three for four. Woods got three for six to keep his average at .500, and Reed also garnered three for six. For the Napredaks, Bonachich Chest Drive Falls Short; Workers Lauded by Mgr.

The Campbell community chest drive which came to a close Saturday evening found the workers approximately $250 short of their $1,950 goal, which just about equals the shortage met with in other nearby communities.

"It was a hard job, and well done," said George S. Robson, campaign manager, in complimenting his workers. "Never before in the history of the local chest has a group of workers faced a more unfavorable condition, and while previous drives have often resulted in over-subscription, we must count ourselves lucky that the deficit is no more than it is."

W. R. Coupland, president of the Campbell Community council, local sponsors of the chest, added his commendation to that of Mr. Robson. "No more able group of workers is to be found anywhere," he said appreciatively.

A complete roster of workers, heretofore unavailable, is given at this time:

The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR

Executive Secretary
Agricultural Council of California

Market control to strike a balance between supply and demand, when rigidly and uniformly enforced, pays agriculture millions of dollars in cash dividends!

And the new marketing agreements, now being widely adopted in the various branches of the agricultural industry, make possible strict and uniform enforcement.

Such, in substance, are the conclusions of E. L. Markell, representing the agricultural adjustment administration of the United States department of agriculture, in his first report of the new set-up in actual operation.

The federal expert emphasizes that the new marketing agreements are directed primarily at raising prices of farmers' products—increasing farm income!

"They are not designed, as some growers seem to feel, to assist the shippers in gaining control of farm products," reports Markell. "Nor is there any desire to alter the existing system of distribution, except insofar as may be necessary to eliminate wasteful practices, and to restrain the operator who will not play fair."

"They are intended to protect the farmer and the department of agriculture is doing its utmost to accomplish this end."

The first marketing agreement to be approved in the entire country covered the California canned peach industry. And California growers profited to the extent of $4,000,000 by the deal, according to Markell.

"Under the marketing agreement for the California canned peach industry," he declares, "the price paid to growers for their No. 1 peaches was fixed at $20 per ton. This was made possible by limiting the pack of California canned peaches to 10,000,000 cases."

"Economists had determined that this restricted output could be sold at a sufficient advance over the probable price of an unlimited pack to enable the canners to pay this amount for the fruit. And the growers received about $4,000,000 more for their crop than they received last year. The restricted pack gives the canners a practically certain market, and the maximum selling price, which was also a part of the agreement to protect the consumer against profiteering."

The Tokay grape marketing agreement, which went into effect after the shipping season was about half over, turned a rapidly demoralizing market into a well stabilized market for the balance of the season. Prior to the agreement, states Markell, prices indicated a return to the growers of less than harvesting costs, but the control made possible by the agreement inspired a feeling of confidence in the buyers which was reflected in greatly improved f.o.b. demand and materially higher average prices.

Control, in the Tokay grape deal, he estimates, saved the growers at least half a million dollars.

Chief criticism of the new marketing agreements, according to Markell, has resulted from the fact that many growers felt the agreements should be among themselves exclusively. But growers, he states frankly, will seldom, if ever, cooperate on a 100 per cent basis—a few, for selfish reasons, or because of too much "rugged individualism"—invariably upsetting the best laid plans for their welfare.

Force, he points out, would be

PALO ALTO COMMUNITY PLAYERS PRESENT "PARIS BOUND"

"Paris Bound," realistic social comedy, by Philip Barry, is the next major full-length production to be presented by the Palo Alto Community players at the new theater in Rinconada park, Nov. 17 and 18. This play is one of the best of those from the pen of the author of such dramas as "Holiday," "The Animal Kingdom," and "Tomorrow and Tomorrow." Barry graduated from Yale in 1918, tried to be contented with writing advertising copy, and finally studied playwriting at Harvard, winning a prize there with his first play, "You and I."

In "Paris Bound," the playwright stretches the scope of the theater in a direction so greatly needed at the present time, that is, he gives a truly adequate and satisfying creation on the stage of people such as most of us know in real life. His plot evolves around the lovable and alive society of upper middle class humans, whom Philip Barry seems to know so intimately and understandingly, and deals with emotions which are close to all of us.

Tickets for "Paris Bound" will go on sale Monday, Nov. 6, at the recreation department in the Palo Alto community house (PA 21711) but mail order reservations are now being received. The admission is 50 cents or by season ticket. Checks should be made payable to the Palo Alto Community players for the exact amount, as tickets are tax exempt.

But when the grower becomes a shipper in interstate commerce, he is immediately subject to federal laws and forced regulation. With the shipper, as with the grower, it has been impossible in the past to obtain full cooperation on a voluntary basis.

The advantages of the marketing agreements, he declares, is that the agricultural adjustment act now provides the power to force shippers of farm products in interstate transit to abide by the will of the majority. It is possible to restrict shipments and even to fix prices, whenever conditions demand it, without fear that a small minority can step in and break the control.

There is much of vital importance to California agriculture in Markell's report of first results under the new marketing agreements. They point the way toward a much more intelligent and systematic marketing program than has existed in the past. And they bring real hope of increasing farm prices to a point where the farmer can make a fair profit, even in the face of overproduction.

KIWANIS NOTES By Heck

Jimmy Rambeau, young musical whiz at the piano, lead off the Kiwanis program yesterday with two well rendered numbers which were greatly appreciated.

Duke Morgan and Roy Archibald made short reports on what they gleaned at the district convention in Bakersfield recently. They helped elect the new district governor, Ben Black of Oakland.

Ex-President Ira Abbott, as chairman, presented Miss Rowena Farman of the domestic science department of Campbell union grammar school, who gave a very interesting and instructive talk on the feeding of students.

Miss Farman classified her story under three heads: feeding the masses—200 to 300; feeding the needy; and special diets. The first group is cared for in the usual manner of squads, beginning with younger pupils. The needy are given particular attention following investigation and authorization from the P. T. A., which sponsors this work. Special diets are prepared for the undernourished or those who are lacking in certain elements of food. This is often done under the direction of the family physician.

Before lunch hour the menu is posted in the upper grades and read to other smaller pupils, with advice to some as to the particular foods best suited to their needs.

The service to needy children has dropped off noticeably, with the result that less than one-third are in that group at present, as compared with the average of 1931.

Prof. W. H. Poytress of San Jose State will talk on the international money system at the next Tuesday meeting. Carl Field will get the gavel.

The beneficial effects of the California Prune Pool, for the past year in control of the prune industry in this state, is clearly shown by the above graph. Comparing the four major dried fruits, the chart indicates a healthy and permanent advance for prunes, while apricots, peaches and raisins show a smaller and more gradual increase.

The situation is fully discussed in a bulletin entitled, "Twelve Months of Progress Under the Prune Industry Plan," just issued to Pool members by Hugh Hersman, president of the organization.

In the other games played Sunday in the Inter-City league, Los Gatos and San Martin played an 11-inning 5-5 game that had to be called on account of darkness, and Richmond-Chase knocked Centerville into third place in an 11 to 1 victory. Richmond-Chase is now one-half game ahead of Campbell, and being that these two teams meet next Sunday at Campbell, it is a chance to take the first half if Campbell wins. If the local club wins, they will be one-half a game in the lead, and will be assured of at least a tie in the final standings. The reason that the half game comes into the percentage is that the Napredaks and Richmond-Chase have an 11-inning tie game to be played over. The game next Sunday should bring out every Campbell fan.

Alamedans Organize Against Water Plan

Alameda county headquarters for the referendum committee against the $170,000,000 state water act have been established in Oakland, at 13th and Webster streets.

W. J. Mortimer of Berkeley, prominent real estate man and civic worker, has been appointed chairman of the county organization. Included in the Alameda county district will be the western portion of Contra Costa county.

"We are organizing in favor of the referendum upon which the people will vote on Dec. 19," said Mortimer yesterday, "in the belief that when the people understand that this proposed bond act is a serious threat against the city taxpayer as well as the farmer, they will vote against the bill.

"We consider the water project untimely, because its avowed purpose, that of increasing crop production, is in direct opposition to the government's determined policy to cut down surplus yields. California today is suffering from overproduction in practically everything that grows.

"To the taxpayers, this proposed legislation is a menace. Sooner or later the state will have to pay back the money it proposes to borrow for this undertaking.

"To the claims of the backers of this act, that it will be self-liquidating, engineers and economists answer that the hopeful estimates of revenue cannot possibly be attained, and that it is the people of the state who will have to make up the deficit—and we believe this deficit will be huge if the politicians are permitted to launch the project."

then due or to become due within the then current fiscal year. It shall be the duty of all officers of any such state agency charged with the collection of the taxes or assessments levied by such state agency to enforce and collect all taxes or assessments so levied or assessed for the purpose of providing payment of the moneys due or to become due under such contract as herein provided."

"State Agency," you will recall, defines any city, county, irrigation district, reclamation district, etc. It would seem, therefore, that any state agency unable to promptly pay service charges might easily find its people being sold out for taxes.

It is still more difficult to believe that the project will cost California taxpayers nothing after a perusal of Section 13 of the law, which says, "The state of California hereby consents to the use and occupation of any and all real property now or hereafter owned by the state, and not dedicated to public use, necessary for the construction, operation or maintenance of said Central Valley project." —Whose money paid for these state lands, if it was not that of California taxpayers?

This is all very confusing—even to the writer. Proponents of the water project shout to the skies that taxpayers are to go scot free of any part of the $170,000,000 cost of the scheme. Why, then, are there incorporated in Section 14 the words, "... department ... shall design all units to be constructed" and empowers the Authority to construct the works by or through the Department or to contract with the United States to do it. The cost to be defrayed from proceeds of bonds or from contributions or appropriations or loans.

The "Department," of course, is the department of public works of the state of California, which is the department that builds and maintains our roads with the 3-cents a gallon gasoline tax paid by every person who operates an automobile. And inasmuch as costs may be defrayed from contributions, what is to prevent the head of the aforementioned department who, by the way, is an appointee of the governor, from contributing the entire cost from the funds of his department? Not a thing, as far as we can learn. Why, the gas tax, under such a burden, could well soar to a dollar a gallon! And from the latest reports from the

Glaring Headlight Campaign Announced

With weather conditions tending to make streets and highways more hazardous for night driving at this time of the year, the California Committee on Public Safety will center its efforts throughout November on impressing the motoring public with the dangers of glaring or inadequate headlights. The campaign will be statewide in scope and will consist of educational activities and cooperative efforts by law enforcement authorities. "Keep Your Headlights Legal," is the slogan adopted by the committee as one means of calling the campaign to the attention of motorists. In a statement announcing the campaign the committee said:

"Motorists should realize the seriousness of the glaring headlight evil. It is the direct cause of many fatal and otherwise serious accidents, particularly at this season. Blinding headlights can easily be corrected as a rule by minor adjustments by an experienced service man. Good lights, adjusted to comply with the law, are essential to safety on the highway at night."

department of commerce, which is doling out public works funds for the NRA, and which is not giving out any more money to coast states due to the fact that they already have had more than their share, it would seem that some such measure as a $170,000,000 gasoline tax would be necessary to finance the project, after all.

And so it goes. That'll be all for this week. More next. In the meantime, look out for the big, bad wolf.

NATION'S YEARLY TELEPHONE CONVERSATIONS TOTAL BILLIONS; AVERAGE 222 PER PERSON

U. S. Also Leads in Number of Telegraph Messages Sent
 Telephone statisticians have completed a survey of the use of tele-phone and telegraph facilities throughout the world. The survey covers the year 1931, the latest pe-riod for which comparable figures are available.
 This study shows that, next to the United States, the country where the greatest number of telephone conversations takes place is Japan. Canada holds third place, Germany fourth, and Great Britain and North-ern Ireland fifth. The figures give 27,500,000,000 telephone conversa-tions during 1931 for the United States, 3,326,148,000 for Japan, 2,565,641,000 for Canada, 2,376,000,000 for Germany, and 1,590,000,000 for Great Britain and Northern Ireland.
 Next come France and Sweden, with 847,206,000 and 842,000,000 telephone conversations respectively. They are followed by Poland, Spain, Denmark, Austria and The Nether-lands.

 During the year, 185,000,000 tele-grams were sent in the United States, 51,142,000 in Japan, 47,312,000 in Great Britain and Northern Ireland, and 33,510,000 in France. Spain, Germany, Australia and Cana-da follow as regards the total num-ber of telegrams, in the order named.
 Telephone conversations in the United States averaged 222 per capita. On a per capita basis, Canada outranks the United States in tele-phone conversations, and New Zea-land is in third place, with Denmark and Sweden following. On the same basis, New Zealand leads in the use of telegrams, with Australia second and the United States third. Tele-grams include inland and also out-going international messages, while telephone conversations represent completed local and toll or long dis-tance messages.
